

In November, I was on a cruise in the North Pacific with my husband, Keith, who had always wanted to do the journey through the Panama Canal!

One day, we walked into the library on the ship and interrupted a lady who was being recorded making a speech. However, she carried on and whilst we crept a little further inside, as quietly as we could, two words jumped out at us - 'breast cancer'!

I immediately became curious and once she had finished the recording I went to speak to her and discovered that her name was Dorothy Sessa, from Calgary and that she had battled with this horrible disease. After receiving her diagnosis in 2016, she decided to create a 'Flight to Freedom' through 5 emotional stages.

It was a pleasure to meet Dorothy, a very inspirational lady, and to spend some time listening to her talk about her journey over the past three years.

It just shows you, it does not matter where you are in the world, there is always someone experiencing this horrible disease and I felt proud to be able to share with Dorothy, the story of Boobs & Brass and what every member and supporter has done throughout our thirteen years of fundraising to help the researches to find a cure, or at the very least, to try to make the life of at least one person, more tolerable during their journey.

If you have a minute, please visit Dorothy's website CLICK HERE and learn about her 'Flight to Freedom'. Perhaps send her a message – she was very interested in our story and I am sure she would be pleased to hear from you.
